Wilmington resident dies after hit-and- run in Maine

By PORTLAND
PRESS HERALD

LIMERICK, Maine — A 47-year-old Massachusetts man died Monday evening from severe injuries he suffered when he was struck earlier in the day by a hit-and-run driver in Limerick, the York County Sheriff's Office said.

John Mullin of Wilmington, Massachusetts, was walking on the sidewalk near Dollar General on Washington Street - Route 11 - about noon when a car rolled onto the sidewalk and hit him, witnesses told the sheriff's office. He was unconscious when deputies arrived.

A rescue crew took Mullin, who was vacationing at a house on Pickerel Pond, to Southern Maine Health Care in Biddeford, and from there he was transferred by helicopter to Maine Medical Center in Portland.

York County Sheriff William L. King Jr. announced Monday night that Mullin had died.

Deputies took William George, 41, of Limerick into custody after he walked to the scene of the incident and told officers that he had hit the pedestrian and left the scene, according to the sheriff's office.

George had been driving a car that belongs to someone else, and the sheriff's office said it was told George did not have permission to use it. Deputies found the car in back of a house near the scene of the crash.

Crime scene specialists from the York and Cumberland county sheriff's offices are reconstructing the incident. King said charges are anticipated.

Facility Master Plan Committee discusses town future

By BRENDAN FOLEY

WILMINGTON - On Wednesday, the Facility Master Plan Committee revealed their preliminary findings at an open meeting to the public. At that meeting, the committee laid out their findings after several months of surveys and inquiries, and revealed their early ideas for the future of Wilmington and its municipal and public buildings.

The committee was formed in December 2015 and is expected to finalize the master plan in December of 2016. Both Town Manager Jeffery Hull and principal architect Steve Cecil of The Cecil Group repeatedly reminded the gathered townspeople that everything discussed and suggested at the meeting were for long-term planning for the town, not immediate projects.

"Having a document like this gives us a compass, if you will," Hull explained, referring to the plan as a "road map."

"Take the longer view," Cecil said. "It'll be a much smoother ride."

To that end, Cecil, senior architect William Gatchell, assistant planner Emily Bennett, and other members of the committee have been conducting studies on municipal and public buildings in town, what Cecil described as "kicking the tires."

While many of the buildings were found to be in good condition, there were problems found. Town Hall is old and is not designed for the purposes it is now being used for. The Art Council Building is in poor condi-

WILMINGTON—Despite the carnival's move across the common from its former spot in the parking lot of the old Wilmington High School to a new spot in the Swain School area, the Fourth of July festivities were very similar to those that residents will remember.

There were still the booths from different organizations and different competitions, activities, and performances taking place on and around the common, there were still dinners and breakfasts provided by different organizations (The Rotary Club, Wilmington Minutemen, Friendship Lodge Masons, Knights of Columbus, and the 4th of July Committee).

Of course there were all of the typical foods for a carnival or fair, the cotton candy, the lemonade stand, the fried dough, the ice cream stand, and other things like fries and soda, something for everyone to enjoy.

And don't forget about the games, popping balloons with darts, water shooting games, racing games, skeeball, a fishing game, and more. Prizes of stuffed animals came in all different sizes and bright colors as well as there being blow up hammers and plastic swords for the kids and adults who win.

It was a beautiful and warm four days with sunny skies, music playing throughout the carnival, many people walking around enjoying food and company.

"The Fourth of July has always been fun for me because it's the beginning of summer and vacation. It's a holiday that revolves around spending time with people," said Angela Mason.

ARE YOU A TRADER OR AN INVESTOR?

Some people buy and sell a lot of stock, trading often, short term, to capture even small gains. Others choose a promising stock and hold it long-term. This may be an indication of personality or mind set, but there are tax distinctions.

The benefit for the longer-term investor is a capital gains tax break: a 15 percent rate for most tax payers on stocks that have been held for more than a year. Losses are limited, though; they can be offset only by capital gains plus $3,000 a year of other income. And deductions for investment-related costs are limited.

Traders, on the other hand, can deduct their expenses on Schedule C, and net profits from trading are exempt from self-employment taxes. But gains are mostly short term, taxed like ordinary income. Losses are usually treated like short-term capital losses and may trigger an audit. Ask us about a Section 475(f) election to help traders fully deduct losses.

On Family Day there were also blue balloons that many of the children were walking around with while having a good time with their families.

"My kids really love the rides and all of the junk food," laughed Kyle Bishop, "It's nice to be able to come out and enjoy the day with them and see them enjoying themselves so much."

As the day progressed and it got later into the afternoon and evening, the common became more and more loaded with blankets and chairs left by people who planned to come back later to enjoy the fireworks, another tradition in Wilmington.

Letters to the editor

Fourth of July Carnival a hit after all

Dear Editor

As abutters to the Swain Green, we were predictably apprehensive about having the carnival relocated from behind the high school to essentially our front yard.

We attended most meetings and, while many listened, we are grateful to Mike Newhouse for hearing our concerns. He saved the carnival by his proposal for a smaller carnival run by the town. The limited hours and a focus on kiddie rides made it a Wilmington family friendly event. The town hit the nail on the head with this.

The low-key nature of the rides, music, lack of loud horns, etc., all contributed to a more relaxed atmosphere.

We would like to thank Chief Bogonis, Chief McClellan and the DPW for the hours that they put in to keep this area safe and clean. We could see at least four to six police officers at a time, and three or four DPW workers during the entire event.

The Family Day held in the morning was perhaps the most well attended one that we have seen in our time here, and those who were there appeared to be having a wonderful time. The Fun on the Fourth members are to be congratulated for that.

Thank you,
Suzanne and Ron Crooker

Fireworks and cookouts locally - have we seen the last Espanade July 4th concert?

By PAUL ANDREWS
Guest Columnist

While July 4th locally marked fireworks and cookouts in Town Crier land, the symbol of our proud flag was everywhere around our local area as cars, homes and all of our local commons took on the central focus of what I call the real birthday of our country and gives us the pause to think of why we have our red, white and blue colors. This also gives us a chance to thank current and past veterans for their services to make us as safe as possible over this most confusing time.

We all know that the world is changing so much with wars still being waged on foreign soil as well as right here in America each and every day with acts of violence that seem to make our television and newspapers full of the various crimes including shootings and drug issues as our internal cultural norms make for difficult days, especially for our police forces at all levels.

What I continue to be proud of these weeks of summer is the great respect that the vast majority of our local citizens have for displaying the American flag. No matter where you traveled in Town Crier land you would find "the colors" on poles in yards, attached to poles from porches, on cars and trucks, baby carriages, on fences and everywhere. I cannot remember a year when I saw more American flags, which speaks volumes for our citizens.

State tribute on nation's birthday

High praise is extended in this column to David Mugar who has been absolutely fabulous in funding what many know as the "famous July 4th concert at the Esplanade" when thousands of local residents travel by boat, rail or walk to the Hatch Shell on Storow Drive to wait with baited breath for the famous 1812 Overture to be played with fireworks to follow. This year, the local concert in Boston was picked up with a national feed by NBC for a national television audience to give our state the showcase production for the national television viewers.

What great pride this has brought to Boston, Massachusetts and New England all of these years and due in great degree to the philanthropy of so many especially most recently, David Mugar has indicated he will be stepping down this year. Discussions have already started again to determine whether this is the end of the famous concert on July 4th or will others step forward to take over the event.

Those who seem to be on the inside feel it has to be funded differently with several business or industrial firms stepping forward to take over this gigantic effort and dividing up the companies into funding certain defined components of this massive event, making payments for example for security expenses, facility rental, advertisement needs, staffing, etc. feeling that no one new David Mugar will come forward to support the financial aspects of this massive enterprise.

Let us hope that efforts move forward rapidly to find a person to coordinate this fund-raising effort and attract the high quality industrial and business supporters to make the Stars and Stripes continue over the Esplanade.

Finally, so far we seem to have seen a quiet holiday weekend, which was a concern to many including the law enforcement community in these most confusing times. In my perspective, each day of peace at home is a huge plus, as long as we remember those in faraway lands.

Summer health and safety tips

By MORGAN HAKALA
News Correspondent

Summer is finally upon us. The hot, humid, sunny days are becoming more abundant. With that being said, it might become easy to fall lax on self-care, but there are some essentials that everyone must remember during the summer months.

Hydrate! Hydrate! Hydrate! It is so important to drink water during these hot months. The hotter it is, and the more you sweat, the less water there is in your system, so it is important to make sure that you replenish it. And, nothing really does taste more refreshing on a hot day than a nice ice cold glass of water.

Also, make sure your pets stay hydrated with fresh, cool water, especially if they are going to be spending time with you outside.

Make sure you wear sunscreen with a high SPF. Even if you don't typically get sun burns, it is still important to wear sunscreen in order to protect your skin from the harsh rays of the sun. Make sure you apply some before you go outside, and then reapply every couple of hours, especially after you have gone in a pool, lake, or ocean. Don't forget to cover spots you might not necessarily think of like your feet, your eyelids, or the part in your hair.

Getting a sunburn on your head is one of the worst feelings. There is also chapstick with SPF in it that you should wear on your lips in order to protect them. If you do get a sunburn, don't fret too much about it. It happens to the best of us. Put some aloe on the burn to help soothe the pain and try to be more careful the next time you are in the sun.

Also be sure to wear bug spray! Mosquito bites are just plain annoying, so if you're going to be outside in an area where mosquitoes are likely to be as well, be sure to wear some. I know it can be kind of a pain and gross to put on, but it's better safe than sorry, especially nowadays with the different diseases that mosquitoes can spread. Some times to wear it would be when watching fireworks or just being outside at night. But also, if you go for a hike, mosquitoes will be more plentiful in the forest. I also tend to wear a hat to keep them away from my hair/face.

Tick checks are important too! If you're ever in an overgrown or woody area, be sure to make sure you don't have any ticks on you. It would not be fun having to deal with Lyme disease when you would rather be enjoying the summer. Also, make sure you check your pets to be sure they don't have ticks on them either.

If you are looking to continue or start a workout regime, the summer is the perfect time to do just that. Keep in mind though that it is best to do any workouts either early in the morning or later on in the evening, in order to avoid the heat of summer.

Finally, summer is the perfect time to start eating healthier, since fresh fruits and vegetables are in more of an abundance this time of year.

I hope these tips were helpful and that you enjoy your summer!

Ball in the House brings a capella to Wilmington Town Common

Join the Recreation Department for an evening of A Cappella at its best! The 2016 "Sounds of Summer" Concert series continues on the Wilmington Town Common on Wednesday, July 13 from 6:30 -8:00 p.m. with Ball in the House.

Following in the path of classic harmony groups like The Temptations and Boyz II Men, this five member veteran vocal band will move audiences with their music. A review from the Boston Globe put it very succinctly - "Ball in the House has everything you would expect to find in a successful pop/rock band ... the one thing it doesn't have is instruments."

Bring dinner, chairs or a blanket, and relax on the Town Common to the sweet sounds of summer. We will see you there. Rain date: Thursday, July 14.

The day the bank opened

By CAPT. LARZ NEILSON

Early May 1928 was a nice time to live in Wilmington. A town of about 3500 people, it boasted 56 trains a day in service to and from Boston. There was a trolley line to Everett and Lowell.

The town had a one-man fire department - Eddie Day, who lived upstairs over a ram-shackle fire station, which boasted two pieces of home-made equipment. Chester Horton, building inspector and a carpenter, was the captain, and Charlie Black was the clerk.

There was a small police force, too: Chief Hill and Al Butters, who stood around at Hudson's Corner (now Wilmington Square). There were others, all specials, including Charlie Riley, who used to stand in the Square when Al was off duty, and watch for traffic violators, people who were speeding over 15 miles an hour. When Charlie caught a speeder, he was in his glory.

The school budget that year was $60,000, and the main topic of conversation was the high cost of education.

There was a spanking new Water Department, which had $350,000 to spend, and concrete was being poured on Kelley Hill for a new standpipe. Herb Barrows, who had the contract to unload the steel for the standpipe was busy erecting a set of sheer legs in the railroad yard, near Shawsheen Avenue. He unloaded the steel and hauled it up the hill with a trusty pair of horses.

The buildings to be seen from Hudson's Corner were all made of wood, unless one went onto the street and looked north, where one would see a new brick building, the new bank, Mechanics Savings Bank. It wasn't a large building by today's standards, but it was a step forward and quite handsome.

Caleb Harriman and George Griffiths were responsible for the erection of the new building. Harriman owned a tannery, and was a water commissioner.

Griffiths lived in the old Hiller House, almost next door to the new bank. He was a forward looking man who was derided for his views. He wanted to build a new road from where DeMoulas is now to where Fred Cain's is. His plan was to have one-way traffic to solve the coming traffic problems. The Planning Board published a report saying the same thing, but nobody listened.

George bought up options for the land to build the road, and was ready to give it to the town, if the road would be built, but everybody laughed at him. They couldn't foresee the conditions of today, but George could.

He finally gave up in disgust.

Fred Cain many years later proposed a similar road. He came close, but it was never built.

One of the newer buildings was the E. E. Gray chain store, also a source of pride to some of the townspeople, for, they argued, a chain store was a sort of recognition that the town was growing. Young Johnny Finnerty was the manager.

Ralph Currier had a meat market. He would wear a straw hat to work. He wore a half-dozen hats, so to speak, including that of town clerk and later state representative. Ralph was always well-liked.

Bill Altman had a meat market, too, in a store that was just torn down in he year 2001. It most recently was the home of Action Glass. Bill Altman was the father of Alan Altman, the retired town counsel.

The post office was in the building that is now an insurance agency. Locals would think of it as Bedell Brothers.

Down beyond the new bank was the Phelps House, still standing, and the home of the kindly Dr. Daniel Buzzell. He was the father of Philip Buzzell, who preceded Alan Altman as town counsel.

The last house on that side of Main Street was a big white one. It was the home of Chief of Police Walter Hill, who thought that Prohibition was a foolish law. That house is still standing, but has been moved to the opposite side of Middlesex Avenue, next to NAPA Auto Parts.

There was one building across the street from the new bank, the former office of the Boston & Maine Railroad Carpenters shop. The shop itself had been torn down but the foundation was still visible. The American Legion used to meet in the former office. Maurice Reebenacker was the commander. He was so heavy that he would sit with his knees apart as he conducted the meetings.

One other building should be mentioned, the gate tender's shanty at the railroad crossing. In those days it was known as Hart's Crossing, the name coming from a former crossing tender. But in 1928, the man who held the job was Henry Hiller, the widower of Dr. France Hiller, who was known as the Casket Lady. Henry had a pleasant smile, as he waved a flag and a sign, stopping traffic so the trains could cross.

This was Wilmington on May 1, 1928, the day the bank opened.

The bank was actually two banks, the Mechanics Savings Bank and the Reading Co-operative Bank. Raymond Johnson was treasurer of both, and Joseph B. McMahon was manager.

Mr. McMahon was the only employee that day. There wouldn't be another for more than a year, when Roland Deming came to work as a clerk. McMahon and Johnson were in the building half an hour before it was due to open. Outside a half dozen young people waited.

Neither man realized that those young people were vying for the honor of having the first passbook in the new bank. When he opened the door at 9 a.m., McMahon took the customers on a first come - first served basis.

The first passbook was issued to Lloyd Laffin, the blacksmith's son. Behind Laffin, a young lady stood with tears in her eyes. She was the daughter of Ralph Currier, and she didn't get the first account. It was a crushing blow!

Those first few months were anxious ones for Joe McMahon and Caleb Harriman, who as director was responsible for the decision to locate where it was. Harriman spent much of his spare time with Joe.

"If only we could get $500,000 in deposits," he would tell Joe, "By God, I'll be happy!"

And less than a year and a half later, the stock market crashed and the country slipped into a period known as the Great Depression.

Long before Caleb had breathed his last, though, that sum was reached. And the two banks under one roof became a local institution, as did Joe McMahon. People would say, "Well, I guess I'll go down and see Joe McMahon," meaning, "I'm going to the bank."

Joe McMahon was also a funeral director. His funeral home was behind his home on Middlesex Avenue. His grandson, Joseph T. McMahon is a lieutenant on the Wilmington Fire Dept.

By November 1, 1928, the Water Department had reached the point where it could expect to take in some money, and arrangements were made for the bank to be the collector. The Water Commissioners would meet in the bank every Saturday night and go over the accounts.

Joe remembered the first bill that was made out - the only one for the month of December 1928. It was to Harriman's Tannery.

The bank was on its way. It was growing. The following summer, it also became the collecting agency for the Reading Municipal Light Dept. Thus there were four offices under one roof.

The bank building today houses a real estate office. Mechanics Savings Bank later became Reading Savings Bank, and then merged with Melrose Savings to become MassBank for Savings. In 2008 it was bought by Eastern Bank. The office is now located at the corner of Middlesex Avenue and Main Street, three doors down from the old bank, on the lot where Chief Hill's house stood. For many years, it was the site of Weinberg's Dept. Store.

The Reading Co-operative Bank moved its office to North Wilmington. Its office is across the street from where Harriman's Tannery used to stand.

New discovery and problem solving kits at library

The Youth Services Department, including Barbara Raab, the Youth Services Librarian, is pleased to announce a new educational collection for kids and their families. Our new Discovery Kits and Problem Solving Kits are designed to help kids develop their STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathem-atics) skills. Each Discovery Kit comes in a backpack and contains multiple interactive materials on a science, technology, engineering or math topic, geared toward a particular age group. Most kits have 1-2 hands-on items, several books and a DVD. The following lists some of the items included in the Discovery Kits:

- Microscopes (one standard and one portable microscope, slides and a slide kit),
- Bugs (16 insect specimens and a magnifying glass),
- Magnets (magnetic wands and bar magnets),
- Bridge Building (Knex Education Introduction to Structures: Bridges set),

- Electronics (Snap Circuits electronics kit for designing and building models of working electrical circuits),
- Human Body (real human x-rays, and a human body model),
- Birdwatching (binoculars and field guides),
- Matter (materials for experimenting with solids, liquids and gases),
- Beebot (a programmable robot for young kids),

- Rainforest (puzzles, games and a seed bracelet kit).

The Problem Solving kits are geared toward preschool children. Each features a different fairy tale, and contains materials to solve a problem. For example, there are building materials to help the 3 Little Pigs build a sturdy house.

All kits can be reserved and can be checked out for one week.

In addition to the STEM kits, a new American Girl doll, "Lea", is now available for checkout. She joins Julie, another doll that has been circulating for a few years. Included in the backpack with the doll are books about the character, accessories, and a journal for kids to write about what they do with the doll.

The purchase of the Discovery Kits was made possible by the generosity of the community through the Friends of the Library 2015 Annual Appeal. The Lea American Girl doll and the Rainforest Discovery Kit were donated by Brownie Troop 76216.

We are excited to be one of the first centers in the greater Boston area to offer SculpSure

• WHAT IS SCULPSURE: SculpSure is the very first FDA cleared, non-invasive laser platform for permanent fat reduction. No downtime and works on all skin types. You can expect a 20-25% improvement in the treated area, which is about the same for coolsculpting. You may treat the same area multiple times for further reduction.

• TREATMENT TIME: SculpSure can treat the entire abdomen with 4 abdominal applicators in just 25 minutes. CoolSculpting using 4 applicators would take 4 hours. Similarly, treating the love handles with CoolSculpting can take 4 hours if using 2 cool-curve applicators on each side, whereas, with SculpSure, both love handle can be treated simultaneously in just 25 minutes.

• PRICE: Since the SculpSure system is so much more time efficient, the cost per applicator is much less than CoolSculpting.

• COMFORT: With SculpSure there is no suction or end of procedure massage which are the two most uncomfortable parts of the CoolSculpting procedure.

• SIDE EFFECTS: There have been no reported side effects from SculpSure. Periodic pains and numbness for up to weeks/months has been reported with CoolSculpting. In addition bruising is not uncommon from CoolSculpting's suction applicators.

Wilmington's Wilson family; Tewksbury's Evans volunteer for 550-mile New England Classic bicycle Tour de Cure for Diabetes

WOBBURN - More than 130 cyclists from around New England and the country will head out from Woburn on July 9 to demonstrate they are in it for the long haul to stop diabetes. The New England Classic Tour de Cure is a multi-day bicycling event that raises funds for the American Diabetes Association. The Tour starts at Parker Chomerics, 77 Dragon Court in Woburn. Local volunteers include Wilmington residents Timothy, Marlena, Sean and Colin Wilson as well as Tewksbury resident Jim Evans.

Cyclists pedal 150 miles on a weekend or 550 miles in a week traveling through Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maine and Vermont. This intrepid group of cyclists takes in the scenery, takes on the mountains and ride together to make a difference in the lives of more than 29 million Americans living with diabetes, including almost 600,000 people in Massachusetts or more than 10 percent of the Bay State population. Their 81-mile route on the first day takes them to the University of New Hampshire in Durham, N.H.

Among those riding in the NEC are a number of Red Riders - cyclists who have type 1 or type 2 diabetes. This year they include members of Team Blood Glucose, a group from the UK who pedal to spread the message that for those with or at risk of diabetes, activity, sports and exercise is a core tool to prevent or manage the disease. A group of Red Riders and Red Striders from other ADA Tour and Step Out Walk events will give the NEC riders a hearty sendoff.

The NEC is part of the American Diabetes Association's Tour de Cure series of fundraising cycling events held in 44 states nationwide. In 2014, more than 60,000 cyclists in 86 events raised more than $29 million to support the mission of the American Diabetes Association: to prevent and cure diabetes and to improve the lives of all people affected by diabetes.

The New England Classic Tour de Cure is sponsored nationally by Lilly Diabetes, Primal Wear and Gold's Gym, and locally by Bikes + Life, Hub Bicycle, Novo Nordisk, Parker-Chomerics, Pfizer Inc., UPS and Whole Foods Market.

The American Diabetes Association is leading the fight to Stop Diabetes and its deadly consequences and fighting for those affected by diabetes. Founded in 1940, the Association funds research to prevent, cure and manage diabetes; delivers services to hundreds of communities; provides objective and credible information; and gives voice to those denied their rights because of diabetes.

For more information on diabetes, please call the American Diabetes Association at 1-800-DIABETES (800-342-2383) or visit diabetes.org. Information from both these sources is available in English and Spanish.

OBITUARIES

Beatrice M. Barry

Avid dancer, bowler, Bruins and Sox fan

Beatrice M. Barry (Sullivan), age 92, a life-long resident of Wilmington, died peacefully on July 4, 2016, at Woodbriar Health Center in Wilmington.

Beatrice was born on September 6, 1923, in Somerville, MA; she was the dear daughter of the late Augustine and Miriam Sullivan. Beatrice was raised in Wilmington and was a graduate of Wilmington High School with the Class of 1942.

Beatrice married the "love of her life" Richard Barry, Jr. on June 22, 1958; together they shared many wonderful years before his untimely passing on March 26, 1984. Bea and Dick became parents to two terrific children, Mike and Anne. Bea loved being a mother; she was always supportive of her children and very proud of their accomplishments. Bea also adored being a grandmother to her granddaughter Katie; she was the light of her life.

Beatrice led a very active life; following High School she worked for the War Labor Board and volunteered for the USO to help in any way with the war efforts until the war ended. Bea then went to work as a secretary for Household Finance Company and the First National Bank of Boston for many years before she retired.

Bea and her friends loved to take day trips and a few over night stays with the Wilmington Recreation Department; they always had a great time. Bea also loved to travel with family, especially her daughter; some of their more memorable trips were to England, Ireland, California and Florida just to name a few.

Bea also loved to be by the water; whether it was growing up on Silver Lake, taking trips to the beach or just relaxing by the ocean with family and friends; she enjoyed every minute of it.

In her spare time, Bea enjoyed dancing, especially at the Knights of Columbus dances with her friends and she was an avid Bruins and Red Sox fan who hardly ever missed a game. Let's not forget Bea's fondness of candlepin bowling; she not only belonged to the coffee league over at Candlewood Lanes in North Reading for many years but she watched bowling religiously on Saturdays, enjoying every strike.

Bea will be remembered as a lovely lady, kind and sweet who would do anything for anyone. Bea cherished the time she spent with family and friends at parties, cook-outs, and holidays; she will be greatly missed by all who knew and loved her.

Beatrice was the beloved wife of the late Richard V. Barry, Jr., devoted mother of Michael Barry and Anne Barry both of Wilmington, loving "Ma" of her granddaughter Kathryn Barry. Cherished daughter of the late Augustine and Miriam (Melzar), dear sister of the late Rita Doherty, Charles and David Sullivan. Beatrice is also survived by her dear friend Mary Boylen as well as many nieces and nephews.

Visiting hours will be held at the Funeral Home on Friday, July 8th from 4:00-7:00 p.m. Memorial donations in Beatrice's name may be made to a Charity of your choice.

James P. O'Neil

Veteran of the Coast Guard

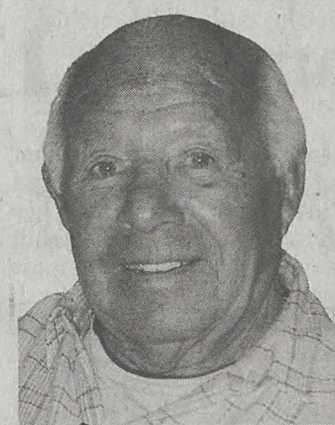

James P. O'Neil, age 93, of Wilmington formerly of Somerville, died peacefully surrounded by his loving family on July 2, 2016, at Care One in Wilmington, following a brief illness.

Jimmy was born on July 16, 1922, in Cambridge, MA; he was the son of the late John and Margaret O'Neil. James was raised and educated in Somerville and was always proud of his Irish Heritage. He enlisted in the United States Coast Guard on November 3, 1942 during WWII. One of James's responsibilities for the Coast Guard was to train dogs for Military purposes; James was very passionate about his job and it led to a life-long love of dogs. James was honorably discharged on January 17, 1946 and returned home to his family. Upon his return to Somerville, James immediately joined the American Legion Post 19 and became very involved in the Post moving up the ranks and becoming the Commander for several years.

Jimmy married his "sweetheart" Jean George in 1942 sharing 65 years together before her passing in 2007. The couple lived in Somerville for many years where they raised four wonderful daughters; Marianne, Beverly, Donna, and Debbie. Jimmy worked very hard to provide for his family and they had many great times throughout the years. Prior to retiring, James worked as a truck driver for Teamsters Unions Local 25 in Charlestown.

Jimmy O loved a "good party" where he could cook up a storm and entertain for his family and friends. He loved all kinds of music and was quite a dancer; he and his wife Jean could float across the floor doing a waltz or switch gears to a fast paced jitterbug, they were always impressive to watch as they danced together.

Jimmy was an avid golfer who got a "hole in one" when he was well into his 80's and also loved to follow Boston Sports teams.

Jimmy also enjoyed the years he spent in Florida or at Old Orchard Beach in Maine where he made countless friends who became extended family.

Jimmy will be fondly remembered as a wonderful guy who could be gruff on the exterior but had a heart of gold and would literally give you the shirt off his back. James was a wonderful son, brother, uncle, husband, father, grandfather, and a true friend to many; he will be greatly missed but would want everyone to dry their tears and celebrate his life; a life well lived.

Jimmy was the beloved husband of the late Jean M. (George) O'Neil, devoted father of Beverly Childers and her husband Frank of Stoneham, Madonna Toto and her husband Michael of Wilmington, Deborah Picardi and her late husband Gino of Indialantic, FL, and the late Marianne O'Neil. Cherished son of the late John and Margaret (Sheehan) O'Neil, dear brother of the late Peggy Vadaro, Catherine, Mary, John, Eugene, and Danny O'Neil. 9:36 pm - Loud fireworks outside the McLaren Road's resident's home were heard. Police could not locate the source.

The driver of the parked van could not be located and a message was left for them to call the police station.

11:17 a.m.: A three car motor vehicle collision occurred on Main Street involving a Toyota Tacoma, a Jeep Liberty, and an Acura TL. After the incident one of the vehicles was leaking gas, so the Wilmington Fire Department, Tewksbury Fire Department, and Tewksbury Police Department responded to the accident.

Clark recounts trip to Poole's Bakery over 50 years ago

By BRENT CLARK

Clark grew up in Wilmington at 99 Church Street in the 50's and 60's. His mother wrote a column in the Town Crier called "Nosey Nancy." He recently penned an essay about the long walk to Poole's Bakery.

It was early Saturday morning when I shook my little brother's shoulder again. He was sleeping and always wakes up slow.

"If you don't wake up right now - I'm going to leave without you!" I said for the second time.

"Where you goin'?" he asked. "I'm going up town to Poole's to get some bread for Ma."

"Poole's?" He yelled as he jumped out of bed. "Why didn't you say so?" I noticed he slept in his clothes again. When you live in a big family of ten kids, you could get away with things like that.

We ran down the stairs from the attic as quietly as two young boys can. Two sets of stairs and outside in the blink of an eye. We called our dog from across the street and headed up the sidewalk. The old concrete sidewalk ran all the way up town. My brother avoided the sidewalk because he didn't like all the rules you had to follow. I myself had holes on the bottom of my sneakers so I stuck to the cement. I couldn't step on the crack or I would break my mother's back! Also, whenever there was a bronze plaque in the sidewalk I had to jump over it with one foot and yell 'ding-a-ling' as I made my way to the next block. If I didn't, then I didn't quite know what would happen, but it couldn't be good!

As we passed a group of houses on the right I looked over to the first house on the right and saw Richard. Richard Cornish was an older guy who had polio. He was always out in his yard in his wheelchair. I yelled out a big, "Hi Richard" as we passed by. Sometimes I went to visit him, but not today because I was on a mission.

Then, I as I looked over the other side of the street I saw Attorney Alan Altman's house. His back yard had a giant hedge that was the home-run fence for Rice's Field where we played baseball for countless hours. If you hit a home-run over his hedge then the ball will be lost because everyone was afraid to go get it or break for it.

On the right was Old Mr. Lewis's house. He had the coolest yard. All along the driveway he had those colored glass things that are on the old poles beside the railroad tracks. He had a ton of them. I yelled, "Hi Mr. Lewis!" as we went by. Mr. Lewis waved - "Hi kids!" He was real old and loved his plants and stuff.

As I looked down at the sidewalk I remembered to watch out for the cracks. I had to take a big step and then a quick shuffle step and another big step. You got used to it after a while. Meanwhile my little brother was walking with one foot on the curb and one foot on the street below. His body went up with a bob and down, his feet going step-bob-slap-step-bob-slap. He was singing a song. "Lou-lou-skip to my lou, Lou-lou-skip to my lou, skip to my lou my darlin!" He sang with his face up towards the sky, his head and glasses were swinging from side to side. Step, bob, slap, song, head swaying. I loved this guy! My little brother.

Coming up on the right was the good old four-room Walker School. I attended third grade there, with a wonderful older teacher whose name was Mrs. Jordan. I loved my school with its giant front steps where the principal rang a huge hand bell to call us in before school and from recess. As we walked by I thought of many things about our school. Like during recess the girls played on one side of the school and the boys on the other. We played giant kick-ball and dodge-ball games. There was three cent ice cold milk in small bottles during lunch, manila paper, giant crayons and pencils. I loved the smell of the white paste we used; I even tried to eat it once because it smelled so edible. Oh boy!

And for some reason I loved that green flaky stuff the janitor put down to mop the floors.

Next, we came to the old Rotary Park on the right. They were building a brand new Little League baseball field down in the corner. This work had created huge hills of dirt that we played and climbed on. The best game was "King of the Hill." In the other corner of the park was the ever exciting and exploratory Bog. I was so tempted to run over there. We loved the Bog. We caught pollywogs, frogs, turtles, kibbies, crayfish, and anything else we could get our hands on. In the winter we would skate and have bonfires on the ice. We would also slide down the hill behind the fire station right onto the ice. My older brothers dragged a giant toboggan up the hill and we all ran and jumped and pushed to get on the toboggan as it headed down hill. What a blast we had as bodies laid all over the hill when we fell off. The victor was the one who stayed on to the end. Never me - believe me!

On the other side of the bog was the old McKenna house. A kid over there was Bobby McKenna. He was my age and could hit a baseball further than anyone I know. He could also whistle real loud through his teeth. His dungarees had a big cuff on the bottom over PF flyer high top sneakers. As we walked past the park it called out to me to come play, explore and run around. I ignored that call with great effort and stayed on my errand. Next was the fire station and all the fire engines were out front that day. The firemen were rolling out and rolling up giant fire hoses. It looked like they just got back from a fire call. I yelled out "hi" to a couple of guys and they yelled back "Hi kids!" as one of the firemen blew the horn in the long hook-in-ladder truck. The horn was so loud that we jumped a mile and I got goose bumps on my neck and arms. Inside the fire station was a Coke machine where we bought ten cent, ice cold cokes sometimes. And on top of the station was a real loud horn that they blew every day at nine o'clock in the morning and nine o'clock at night. Also, they blew the horn on "no school" days. All little boys love fire stations, and we were no exception!

As we continued on, we walked past the new post office that was all shiny and bright. And then the cool little red brick building. It had a cool bronze plaque at the doorway that had a bell on it and said Bell Telephone. I just had to run up and touch it. Our pace naturally quickened as we headed up the hill to good old Wilmington Center. Across the street I saw Church Street Hardware Store where Mr. Griffin was the owner. He had always been kind to us kids. Even when we brought in dirty and scratched return bottles - he acted like we are bringing him a great treasure. After he payed us our deposit money he gave us a Tootsie Roll Pop as we headed out the door. His store was one of my favorite places, with the old creaky wood floors and a giant spinning thing that held all kinds of nails. Nails were sold by the pound and handed to you in a crinkly brown bag. Most boys would tell you that they love hardware stores with all the cool tools and stuff in them.

As we continued to climb the hill, I stick my hand out and dragged my finger along the cement grout between the bricks. The idea was to keep your finger on the grout until you were up and around the corner. When we rounded the corner, Poole's Bakery came into sight. It was at the bottom of the hill, across the street. The store looked like some kind of magical, beautiful, shiny gem as the large plate glass windows reflected the morning sun. "Poole's!" My brother yelled as he took off. "Last one there is a rotten egg!"

"FLASH!" I yelled as I chase after him. Flash was a favorite comic character that wore a red costume with lightning on his hood. He was one of the fastest of all the legendary super hero characters.

As we ran, our feet hardly touched the ground because we were so young and so light. It was as if we had the gift of flight because our hearts were in an imaginary world. My brother hit the door with a bang. He yelled tauntingly, "I win, I win, you're a rotten egg!"

Of course I got him with the old, "I know you are but what am I?" As we opened the door, the smell of baking bread and donuts hit our noses. What a heavenly smell. It smelled like warmth, comfort, home, and joy all in one. My stomach growled as we yell out, "Hi Mr. Poole!"

"Hi boys!" he yelled out. Mr. Poole was an older - grumpy, friendly type of guy. He wore a big white apron, granny glasses, and had a bald head with a little white hair on the sides. His skin was white from baking flour on his arms. I loved good old Mr. Poole who had always been kind to us.

"What'll it be today?" he asked as I handed him a note. As he read the note he reached into the glass cabinet in front of us and took out two beautiful loaves of golden fresh baked bread. He wrapped them in crispy wax paper and put them in a brown paper bag that was just the right size. Then, he grabbed a flat piece of thin cardboard and folded it into the shape of a box. He then proceeded to put a mix of delicious fresh baked donuts into it. As he was doing this I said, "Mr. Poole - the note says only two loaves of bread."

He gave me a glance over his granny glasses and says: "Don't you think I can read young man?"

He continued to fill the box and closed the flap. He grabbed the end of a spool of white string and quickly wrapped the box with a criss-cross, criss-cross and broke the string. As I handed him a dollar, I thought, I'm in big trouble now. My mother only wanted two loaves of bread and she told me to bring back the change. I quickly did the math in my head: two loaves of bread at 27 cents a loaf equals 54 cents. I needed to bring home 46 cents or I would be in deep trouble.

After a ring of the bell and the slam of the drawer, I heard the sound of change clinking as he handed me 46 cents with a smile. "The donuts are on the house boys!"

"Thanks you Mr. Poole - Thanks!" I yelled as I handed the donuts to my little brother, and we headed for the door.

"Oh boys - wait!" He yelled excitedly as he grabbed little pieces of wax paper and grabbed a jelly donut for each one of us and said, "One for the road!" My heart was so full. I couldn't believe how nice this man was to us. I took a bite of the donut right where the hole was, because you had to follow certain rules you know.

As we head back up the hill I saw Ames News Store, Joe Ryan's Barber Shop where we get our wiffle haircuts, and Wilmington Center Pharmacy that had a real soda fountain.

Turning the corner at the top of the hill, we headed toward home. My brother started singing "Lou- Lou, skip to my Lou!" I locked arms with him and we skipped with that goofy skip hop-skip hop way that boys do who just can't get the skipping thing down.

Town buildings in good condition overall, but consolidation may be needed in future

tion, as is the Department of Public Works Garage. While most of the schools are in at least good condition, the Wildwood School was found to have significant building condition issues.

Part of the study includes tracking the current population and the expected trends as time goes on. The surveys project that the population of children is projected to "substantially" decrease, while services to senior citizens will increase "disproportionally and significantly."

"Wilmington, like most of suburban Boston, is not modelled for significant population growth," Cecil said. "People are staying and living here as they get older."

A major factor in the conversation was distribution and movement of students. Enrollment in schools for grades Pre-K through 5 have dropped from 1892 in 2005-2006 to 1623 in 2015-2016. However many students undergo a number of transitions across multiple schools during their pre-middle school careers, which causes discomfort and frustration in students and problems with distribution of faculty resources.

The committee suggested a number of options for how to deal with the schools. One option would be to bring all six schools up to all standards, which would require major renovations. Other options include the consolidation into four elementary schools of relatively equal size for pre-K through 5, or consolidation of Pre-K and Kindergarten into one school with the other three being utilized for just grades 1 through 5.

Selectman Judith O'Connell, speaking as a member of the audience, requested Superintendent Mary DeLai's opinion on consolidation efforts.

DeLai stated that research supported cutting down on the number of transitions for young students.

"Our grade configuration is making it challenging to do what we want to do," DeLai said.

A number of options were also proposed for the municipal buildings around town, options ranging from simply keeping things as-is with improvements made to most problematic areas, to redeveloping Town Hall and creating a new building program around the Town Common.

"Your facilities are more dispersed than almost any other town we've worked with," Cecil said.

Selectman Michael Champoux asked if each option had to be followed explicitly or if pieces could be cherry-picked from individual suggestions. The committee confirmed that different ideas could be taken from different plans and mixed together, something they will continue to develop in the build-up to December.

O'Connell pointed out that the town puts a good deal of money towards the buildings each year, and wanted to know if there would be a "road map" to explain the financial goal for the capital improvement projects.

"This is a town that has put a lot of dollars towards big ticket items," Cecil said. "But it has a somewhat aging set of buildings. You have, in good New England fashion, been re-using buildings and finding ways to move pieces around. But when you are in older buildings, you can end spending money not wisely."

Former wrestler arrested in alleged attack at party

defendant who has committed a crime such as a violent felony, arson or violation of a restraining order can be held under 58A when their release might threaten the safety of the community.

At the 58A hearing on Wednesday, the judge was unable to come to a decision on the terms of Brock's release and extended his hold until Thursday. Due to the nature of Dokos's alleged crimes, he will remain at the Billerica House of Corrections without bail until his next hearing.

According to the arrest report released by the Tewksbury Police Department, a fight broke out between Dokos and one of the victims around 3:30 a.m. on July 3. Dokos allegedly punched the victim several times, causing fractures to the orbital socket, left maxillary sinus and to the jaw in two places. One witness recounted that after the second punch, the victim lost consciousness and "had no time or any means to defend himself." The victim had additional soft tissue damage that required stitches.

The victim was taken to Lowell General Hospital and treated, and is expected to make a full recovery.

Dokos is also alleged to have attacked a second victim who attempted to stop the initial assault. The victim stated in the police report that Dokos "headed towards me and threw a jab at me" but did not strike him. The second victim suffered no injuries.

In the police report, eight witnesses allege that Dokos attacked the victims unprovoked; the accused's family and two witnesses assert that the pair exchanged words that night and that the victim started the altercation. Several witnesses were noted in the report as being "in fear of Brock" and hesitated to speak out, alleging Dokos "is unpredictable and has a history of violence."

According to the police report, the victim's father said that Dokos had threatened his son earlier in the wrestling season. He alleged Dokos told his son he would "get him when he least expected it."

Dokos's father, Robert, maintained that his son was not the violent type. "[Brock] has that switch," Bobby said. "When he's not on the (wrestling) mat, he's the nicest kid in the world."

Another witness said that Brock Dokos is known for his violent outbursts but is "honored for his athletic excellence," and alleged he "gets away with fights like this."

Just after 9 a.m. on July 4, the Tewksbury Police put a message on Twitter reading, "Brock Dokos is wanted for questioning for an assault which has left the victim with serious injuries," and advised those with information to call the station. At 1:50 p.m. the same day, the department tweeted that Dokos was in police custody after voluntarily turned himself in after learning there would be a warrant out for his arrest.

Dokos was placed into custody and his bail was set at $25,000 cash.

The Tewksbury Police declined to comment about this case because "it's an ongoing investigation."

Robert Dokos asserts that his son has been bullied before and that his son is being targeted due to his status as an athlete and hopes the courts will understand his son's situation. Brock recently won the Division 2 State Championship for wrestling and played football as a linebacker for three years, at TMHS. He had committed to wrestle at Iowa Lakes College in Estherville, Iowa. He and his family recently relocated to Lawrence from Tewksbury.

"Brock's record will be with him for the rest of his life," said his father after the initial arraignment on Monday. "He's an 18-year-old kid who deserves a fair shot."

The victim's family elected not to make any statements at this present time.

Comes with new AD from Matignon High

Beddia named new WHS Cheerleading Coach

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
Fans of Wilmington High sports are looking forward to the improvement of several teams this upcoming school year, with supporters of some of the higher profile sports like football and basketball among those most excited about the direction new Athletic Director Tim Alberts plans to take the Wildcats sports program.

But there is another sport at Wilmington High, that while flying a little more under the radar, is also looking to make some major steps forward. The Wilmington High Cheerleading team will be looking to take their performance to another level this season, and they certainly seem to have the right coach to take them there, with former Matignon High head coach Amanda Beddia taking over the reins of this up and coming program.

Beddia takes over for former Wilmington coach Nicole Minghella French, who resigned after leading the Wildcats to several successful seasons. Alberts is very confident that Beddia is the right coach to continue the Wildcats tradition and take them to even greater heights.

Alberts has seen what Beddia can do firsthand, as she coached under him for the past three years when he was the Athletic Director at Matignon.

"She took a program at Matignon that had not done very well for a long time and she made it into a very good program," Alberts said. "Out of all twenty-two sports we had at Matignon she was one of our most reliable and hardest working coaches, and I am sure she will bring the same thing to Wilmington High."

Alberts knows how lucky he and Wilmington High are to have been able to hire a coach of Beddia's caliber, especially when losing a talented coach like Minghella French.

"It's a very hard position to find the right person," Alberts said. "It can be a team that gets overlooked by some schools, but that it is not how I look at it. I think Amanda will be a great fit here and will do a great job." Beddia, for her part, is very excited to be reunited with Alberts after seeing the way he supported the cheerleading program, and in fact all sports, at Matignon.

"Tim and I worked well together at Matignon, so when I found out this position was open it was really like a no brainer to work with him again," Beddia said.

It was not just the presence of Alberts, however, that brought Beddia to Wilmington High, as she is tremendously excited to simply be a part of the Wildcats sports program. And she has some big plans and even bigger expectations for the Wildcats.

"I could not be more excited to do this. It is like a dream come true," Beddia said. "We are setting our sights very high. We want to win a state title. We know there are a lot of strong programs in the Middlesex League, but with the talent we have I think we can do well. It should be a very exciting year."

In addition to her experience at Matignon, Beddia brings quite the resume to her new position at WHS. A 2005 graduate of St. Mary's High School, where she was a cheerleader for four years, before moving on to Hofstra where she was a cheerleader for the Division 1 school during her freshman year before graduating 2008, Beddia brings a wealth of experience to Wilmington High.

Her college experience in particular, should serve her well at Wilmington High, just as it did at Matignon, having worked under the direction of coach Christine Farina, who has led Hofstra to seven national titles in her eleven years as coach.

"College was a totally different experience, and it was a great experience," Beddia said. "My coach there was one of the greatest coaches in the entire country. I got to know a whole new world of cheerleading that I never knew before."

"It is definitely something that I can draw on. I feel like it gives me a leg up on the competition because high school and college are two totally different styles and I am able to pull some of what I learned in college and use that which gives us a good blend."

Cheerleading Car Wash Fund Raiser

One of Beddia's first acts

as coach of the Wildcats will come this weekend, when she and her athletes host the first of what Beddia hopes will be many fund raisers for her team.

On Saturday, July 9, the Wildcats will host a car wash at the Fourth of July Building from 10:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m. Cheerleading is traditionally one of the more expensive sports for a student to participate in, and the price just went up this season with more restrictions on the type of music that can be played during routines.

"The donations from the car wash will cover the music costs for this year," Beddia said. "Starting this year there are very strict rules as to what you can use. You have to buy the rights to any music you use, so that can be quite expensive."

Beddia is hoping to make fund raising an important part of her coaching at Wilmington High.

"I am huge on fund raising," Beddia said. "I will do this one and hopefully two others in fall, and hopefully more in the winter."

Beddia is grateful for the support she received from Albert as well as the rest of the Wilmington High administration in her fund raising efforts.

"Absolutely it is huge to have that kind of support," Beddia said. "Tim in the past has been a phenomenal supporter of cheerleading. Also, everyone else in the athletic office and in the administration has been very supportive."

Redmen JV Softball team completes successful season

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
TEWKSBURY -- If the goal of a junior varsity program is not only to build better athletes for the future of the program but also to build the character and competitive drive of those future athletes, then the recently completed season of the Tewksbury High JV Softball team would have to be considered a tremendous success.

While their varsity counterparts were making a run all the way to the state championship game, first year coach Lindsay Picano and the JV Redmen provided a nice glimpse into the future, posting a 10-9 record, while at the same time developing several players who appear to have the talent and the drive to continue their success at the varsity level.

A good example of both the talent and the drive on the young Redmen squad came in their season finale when they took on an Andover squad that had beaten them 12-2, earlier in the season. This time, however, the Redmen were ready for the Knights, and despite facing some adversity, they turned the tables on the opposition with a 12-8 win.

"They (Andover) were an all around great team and I knew we would have to work hard if we wanted to beat them when we faced them for our last game," Picano said. "Two days before we played them we had a few talented girls quit the team, but my team overcame the loss and won the game, giving Andover their second loss all season."

"That game not only showed me how much they improved this season but also how much they can come together as a team and win games."

The Redmen had another memorable game earlier in the year when they topped a talented Chelmsford squad behind the efforts of freshman pitcher Alyssa Ouellette, who struck out eight batters in just four innings. Ouellette was hardly the only standout for the Redmen this season, as several players stood out offensively and defensively throughout the year.

Sophomore third baseman Cassia Fontes was described by Picano as a defensive standout, while offensively the Redmen had four players hit over .500 for the season, led by sophomore Molly Hodgins who led the team with a .697 batting average.

"Molly was one of the girls that sat on the bench the most her freshman year, but came out this year and hit .697," Picano said. "I was extremely impressed."

Junior center fielder Tayla Spezzano was another player who impressed Picano, not only with her .511 batting average, but also with her work ethic.

"(Tayla) was one of our hardest workers on and off the field," Picano said. "She is someone who wants a varsity spot next year and I know she has the talent to earn one. She always wanted to get better and better at hitting. She would always ask if I would go to the batting cages and help her."

Two other standouts for the Redmen were sophomore shortstop Taylor Brothers who hit .561 and sophomore catcher Sarah Bishop who hit .500, while the pair were also defensive standouts for the Redmen.

While these players were a few of the standouts, Picano was thrilled with the performance of her entire team.

"They are all extremely talented girls. I would always tell them that they just need to believe how talented they are within themselves," Picano said. "Whoever works the hardest in the off season will fill in those spots needed on varsity."

While this was Picano's first year as head coach of the JV team, she had assisted with the freshman team last season. Picano is just the latest member of a proud Tewksbury High family, where her dad Tom Bradley is a member of the TMHS Hall of Fame, and was recently named the school's new Girls Basketball coach. Her mom meanwhile, Pam Picano, was also a standout athlete for the Redmen, having captained coach Leo DiRocco's squad in 1990.

Picano graduated from Dracut High, where she graduated holding the most varsity letters of any athlete in her class, having played soccer, basketball, and softball. She was also a walk-on soccer player at UMass Dartmouth.

Picano might not be a TMHS alum, but she knows all about being "Tewksbury Tough"

"I remember how much I always hated playing them in high school because of the level of talent year after year. So I know I wanted to try and coach there," Picano said. "I learned a lot this year and hope to continue to grow as a coach in this program."

Tewksbury 11-year-old American All-Stars battle to the final out

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com

TEWKSBURY -- Last Wednesday night, for the second game in a row, the Tewksbury American 11 All-Stars suffered a hard fought loss at the hands of Andover National. In the end the Tewksbury 11's found themselves on the short end of a 19-2 final score, but as Tewksbury coach Jim Sullivan said, the final score did not tell the whole story.

Much like Monday night's game, when Tewksbury suffered an 8-5 loss to Andover, Tewksbury was done in by having to pull their star pitcher from the game in the middle of a great performance due to his reaching his pitch limit.

On Monday night it was ten year old Anthony Burgess who put in a splendid effort before being pulled after five innings when he reached his 75 pitch limit with a 5-1 lead only to see his team suffer an 8-5 loss.

On Wednesday night it was fellow ten year old Scotty Miller who pitched very well before reaching his limit, leaving the game with the bases loaded and nobody out in the fifth inning while holding a 2-1 lead. Before the inning was over Andover would score seven times, turning a 2-1 deficit into an 8-2 lead.

Miller's pitching line on the night was four complete innings, four earned runs and four strikeouts. Miller also received good support behind him in the field from the likes of Andrew Della Piana, Anthony Burgess, Billy Burris and Johnny Ragucci.

Once Miller was lifted, the Tewksbury American's ran into the same troubles as they had on Monday night after lifting Burgess. Some inconsistent pitching, along with some timely placed hits, a few misplays in the field lead to the seven run uprising in the fifth.

"We really needed to get strikes and make them put the ball in play and rely on our fielders, but unfortunately with the bases loaded we didn't," Sullivan said. "We just gave up too many walks and free passes and then they hit it in spots that we weren't in and we hurt ourselves with some misplays in the field."

"It's hard with a team that's as young as we are. No one is making any excuses for that, we just need to bounce back better and stop the bleeding. Andrew Della Piana does a really good job of leading our team as an older and more experienced guy, but we just need a few more of both the older and younger guys to step up as well in those challenging times."

After going down in order in the bottom of the fifth inning, the sixth turned into more of the same for Tewksbury with Andover scoring 11 more times against two more Tewksbury pitchers, making it 19-2 in favor of Andover National. Still, Sullivan was impressed by his team's effort in playing until the last out of the game.

"The positives and good news is that these kids never quit or give up," Sullivan said. "They battle and fight in every at bat and on every pitch in the field. Another positive is that we have trotted six different guys to the mound in the last two games getting them valuable experience. We are going to need all of these guys for the rest of the tournament."

Performing offensively for Tewksbury in the loss to Andover were Della Piana, who went 1-for-2 with two walks and an RBI, Anthony Burgess who collected a single, Scotty Miller who patiently grabbed two walks, one of which came with the bases loaded to collect an RBI. Connor Griffin also picked up two walks, while Billy Burris had two walks also and scored a run and Matty Flynn once and scored Tewksbury American's other run.

"We were patient, made them throw strikes, which for a couple of innings they had a hard time doing but we just couldn't come up with that one big hit to bust it open earlier with Miller on the mound," Sullivan said.

In all, the Tewksbury American's left ten runners on base in the game, leaving them loaded in the first and fourth innings, while leaving two in the third inning and one each in the second and fifth innings.

"If we just picked up a big hit in either the first of fourth, that game is entirely different," Sullivan said. "We'll all keep battling and working together and work to get a couple of those big hits to make the difference. These kids are great. They work hard, they care about one another and they care about representing Tewksbury baseball and being successful."

OTHER GAMES

The Tewksbury 11/12 year-old Nationals are 0-2 losing their second games to Andover Nationals, 13-2.

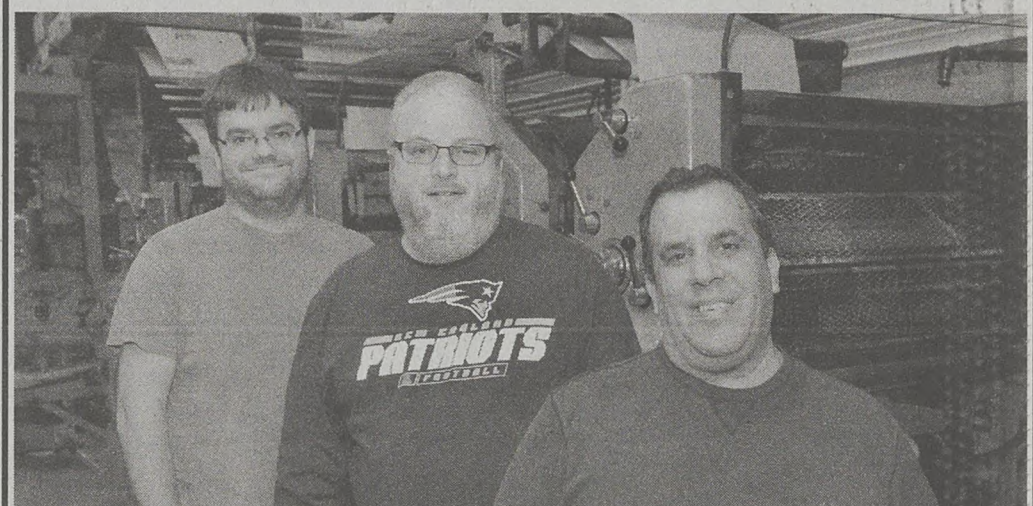

In the 10/11 year-old division, Tewksbury Nationals are 0-4, losing this past week to Andover Nationals, 8-6 and to Andover Americans, 14-4, while the Tewksbury Americans are also 0-4 losing to North Andover Nationals, 15-5 and North Andover Americans, 11-1.

At the 9/10-year-old level, Tewksbury Nationals improved to 3-0 with a 6-0 win over Tewksbury Americans (1-2) and the two teams will meet up again in the sectional final on Thursday night at Poulin Field at 6:00 pm.

12-year-old All-Star Baseball team rallies from eight runs down

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com
WILMINGTON - In a game that featured two hard throwing pitchers, it was the opposing hurler, who was absolutely dominating which was the difference in the outcome of the game.

On Friday night, the Wilmington 12-year-old All-Star Baseball team fell victim to Woburn, 7-0 held at Rotary Park. Tanners' left-handed pitcher Mike Arsenault tossed a complete game, no-hit shut out, which included walking one batter and striking out 16 batters including one reaching on a dropped third strike. Only two batters made contact off Arsenault - Nate Packer who tried to bunt and Joey Cornish who hit a comebacker to the mound and both were thrown out by Arsenault. He also was a big presence at the plate going 2-for-3 with a double, 3 RBI and a walk.

"That kid was phenomenal and we won't face another pitcher like him the rest of the tournament," said Wilmington assistant coach Mark Dynan. "This was a tough loss but I thought our kids played well. (Arsenault) pitched a great game."

Arsenault was easily throwing 70 miles per hour from 60 feet and over-matched the entire Wilmington line-up. He struck out the side in the first four innings and then in the final inning, getting the 16th punch-out on his 86th pitch. Little League rules have an 85-pitch limit for every pitcher, but if the pitcher reaches that limit during an at-bat, he is allowed to finish with that batter.

Overshadowed by the performance of Arsenault, was Wilmington's very tall and big pitcher Aiden Elkins, who also displayed plenty of heat coming from his right arm. He gave up two unearned runs on just two hits, while walking two and striking out ten batters in just 3.2 innings. He had to come out in the top of the fourth inning, trailing 1-0, with the bases loaded and two outs after reaching his pitch limit.

"Aiden pitched a great game," said Dynan. "(Woburn) was able to get his pitch count up a bit so we had to take him out earlier than we would have liked but he pitched a strong game, a strong game. I think if we can look to be a little more aggressive in the field, just being more aggressive going to some balls, it'll pay off for us (in the future)."

Woburn combined to score five runs in the last two innings to break the game open.

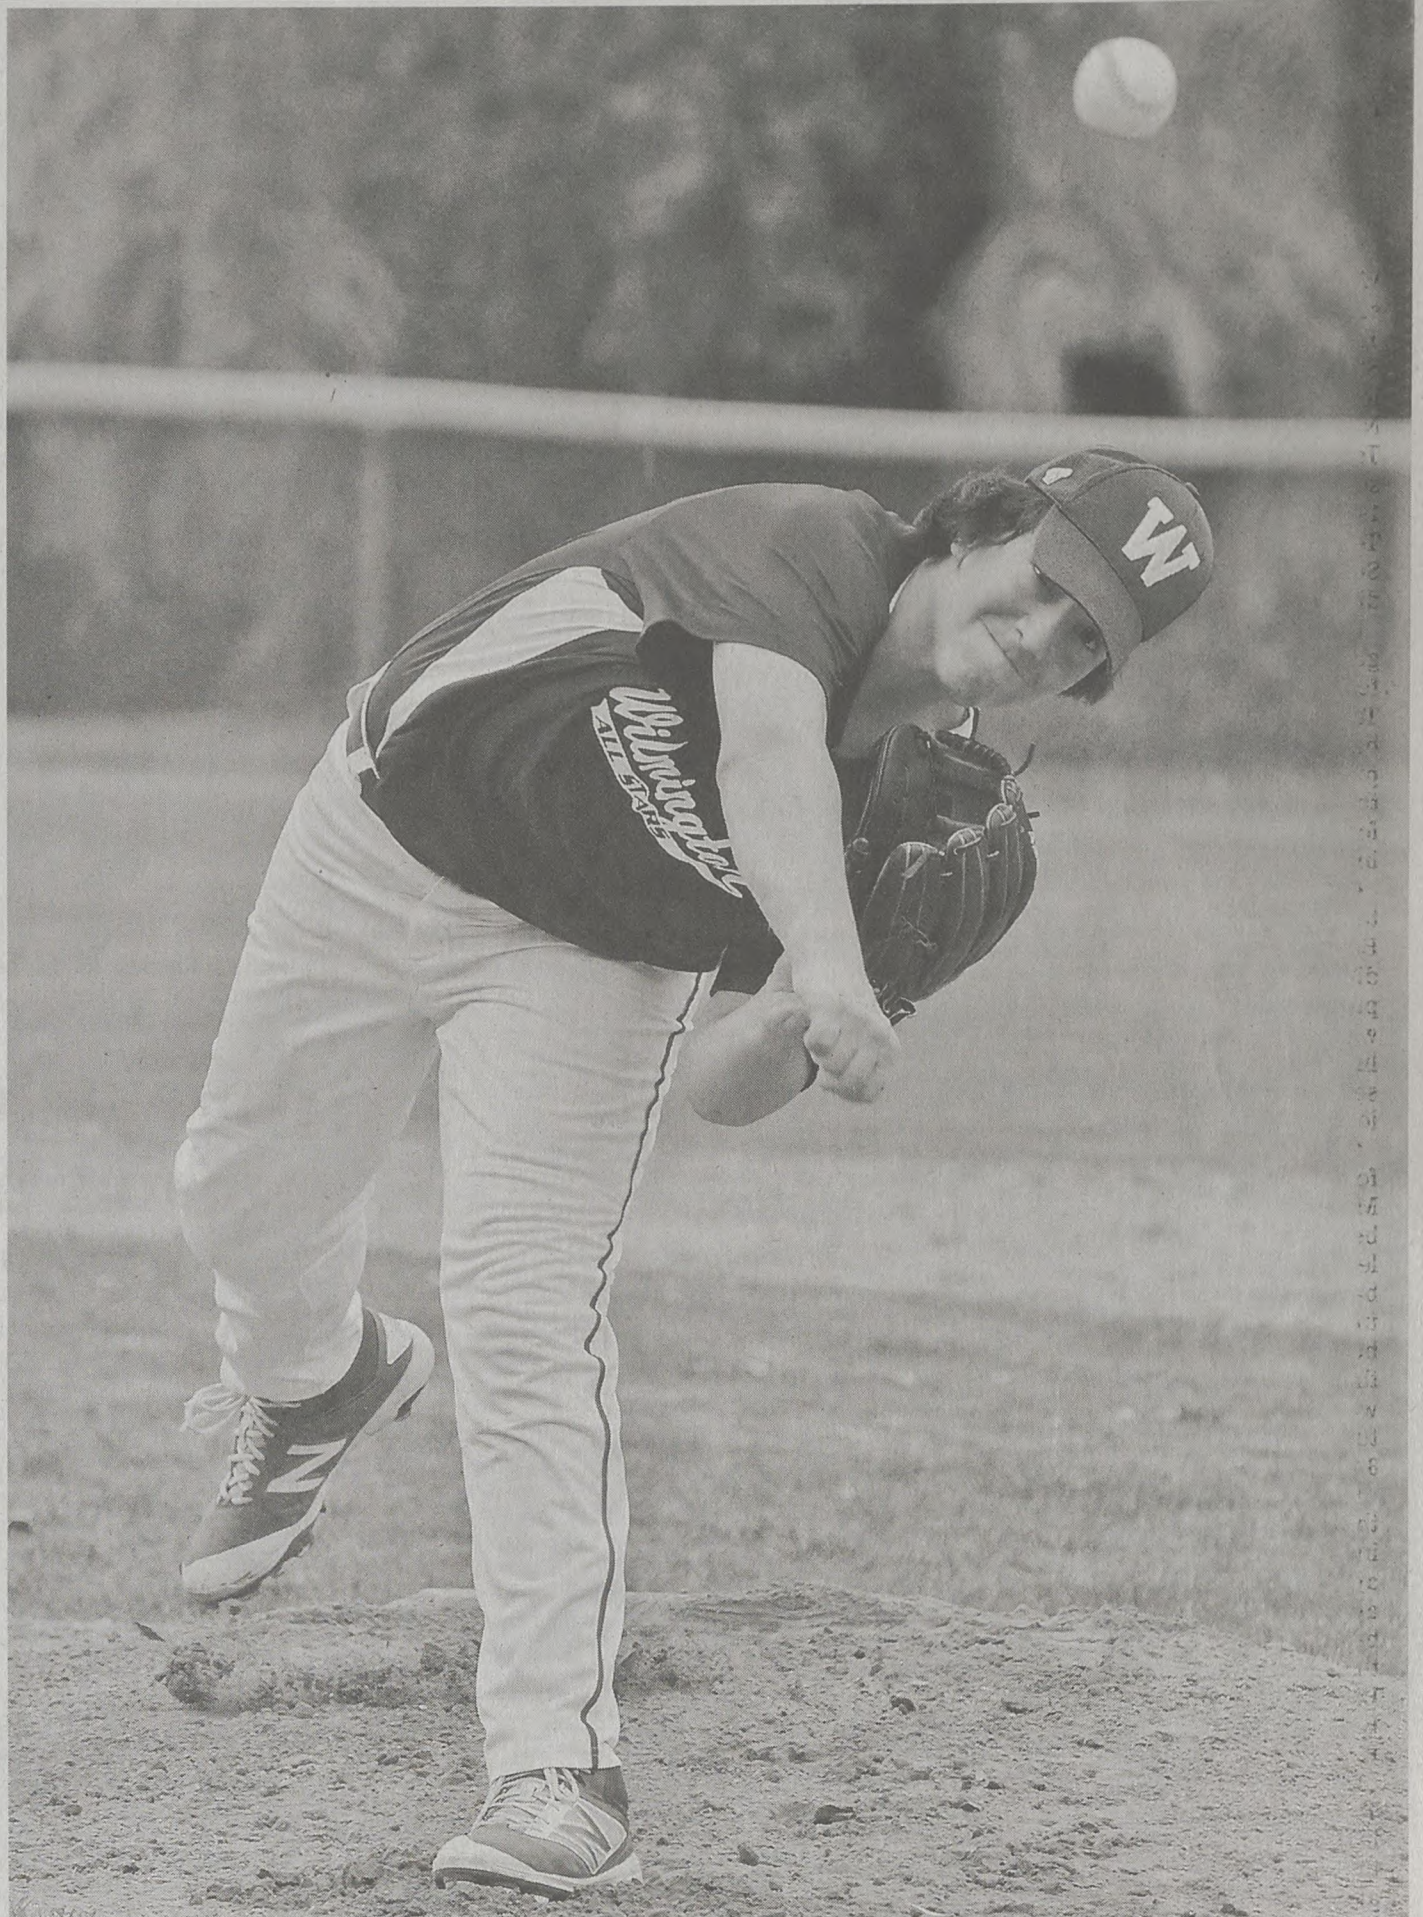

On Tuesday, Wilmington rallied for an 8-0 deficit to come back and beat Stoneham, 15-12, to even the team's record to 1-1 thus far.

Wilmington managed just one single through the first four innings before scoring 14 runs in the fifth inning.

James Fisher started the big rally with a two-run double down the right field line to score Willie Stuart and Devin McLaughlin. That hit was followed by RBI singles by Aidan Elkins, Garrett Moretto and Ryan Ackerley making it 8-5.

After two groundouts and a wild pitch tied the game at 8-8, the incredible inning continued for Wilmington with two walks a two-run double by Moretto and then a three-run home run by Ackerley. Colin Sainato, Jason Davey, and Joey Dynan each also scored runs for Wilmington.

Joey Dynan started pitching and McLaughlin came in to relieve him in the third inning. They combined to strikeout eight batters in the game. McLaughlin got into a jam in the sixth, as Stoneham cut the lead to 15-12 and had the bases loaded. McLaughlin struck out the potential winning run at the plate to end the game.

Wilmington 11-year-old team remains undefeated

By JAMIE POTE

Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com

The Wilmington 11-year-old All-Star Baseball team knocked off two more teams this past week, Reading 6-5 and then North Reading 11-4, which puts the team at 3-0 and putting them into the sectional semi-finals against Woburn played Wednesday night while this paper was being printed.

Last Thursday, Wilmington topped Reading 6-5 in a back-and-forth game. Wilmington scored three runs in the top of the first only to see Reading respond with five of their own in the bottom half.

Wilmington scored a run in the top of the second and the score remained 5-4 in favor of Reading until Mike Vinal launched a solo home run in the top of the fifth to tie the game up at 5-5. Two batters later, Johnny Rhind hit a solo home run of his own for the game winning hit.

While the solo home runs were instrumental in the win, several other players also stepped up in critical parts of the game. In the bottom of the fourth, Reading had two runners on with one out, and Wilmington first baseman Patrick Stokes made a great play snagging a line drive before doubling up the runner at first to escape further trouble.

Dom Gabardi pitched the first five innings, giving up one walk and striking out five which included tossing a 1-2-3 scoreless bottom of the fifth after his teammates gave him two runs on the solo shots. Vinal pitched the sixth inning and recorded the save.

Matt Ardito was also key to the win as he reached base all four times with three hits and a walk.

That win pushed Wilmington to Saturday's game against North Reading. Both teams entered at 2-0 and it was Wilmington coming out still undefeated. Wilmington trailed 2-0 before scoring five runs in the third inning and six more in the fourth inning on its way to the 11-4 win. Vinal and Stokes combined for the six innings of work on the mound, combining to give up five hits and striking out six.

Offensively the Wildcats were led by Jack Farrell, Michael Daniels, and Dom Gabardi who each had two hits and two runs scored. Jacob Roque, Dan Passerini, Owen White, Stokes, and Vinal each scored single runs for Wilmington. Marcello Misuraca had a two-run double and combined with Dillon Bloom behind the plate back-stopping Wilmington's victory.

Many of these kids have gone on to become highly successful high school and college baseball players.

Under 14-3 soccer team finishes second in tournament

After finishing their regular season 10-0, the Tewksbury Girls U14-3 team looked to cap their perfect regular season with a strong showing at the Commissioners Cup tournament held in Woburn on June 18th and 19th. The girls joined the top teams from all different age groups and Divisions throughout the Middlesex Youth Soccer League to fight it out for top spots in their respective groupings.

The girls took immediate control of their first game against a skilled Waltham team and controlled the ball movement throughout the game. Their dominant defense, which only allowed four goals against the entire regular season, was rock solid once again and Tewksbury captured their first game 2-0.

In their second game, the girls faced a strong Lowell team and scored first with a few minutes to go in the first half. The teams traded possession for most of the second half and with less than five minutes to go in the game, Lowell scored on a corner kick and the game ended in a tie which meant the girls were in a 'must win' situation going into Sunday afternoon's third and final game.

In their last game vs. Billerica, the first half didn't yield either team a goal after a great back and forth battle. Knowing a tie wouldn't be enough, the Tewksbury girls dominated the play the entire second half with a constant barrage of passing and shooting but ultimately were unable to net the decisive goal, and the game ended in a scoreless tie and an overall second place finish in the Commissioners Cup for the girls respective Division.

Wilmington Pony League Baseball team off to a 5-2 record

By BRENDAN FOLEY
Sports Correspondent

brendanmfoley@outlook.com
WILMINGTON—The Wilmington 14/15-year-old Pony League team has gotten off to a great start this summer, with a 5-2 record for their opening record. Despite losing the first game of the season, the team has bounced back and enjoyed a number of strong wins.

Their most recent game was a 3-2 nailbiter against Billerica. The close win was pulled off thanks to a command pitching performance by Chris Stokes, who pitched for the whole game. Stokes has also provided big hits for the team.

Pitching was also a major factor in another of the team's recent wins, as Mike Fiorenza took the mound against Dracut and led the team to a 6-3 victory.

Strong pitching, big hits from the likes of Stokes and Dom Pedi, and defensive strength from Jake Danieli at second and Bailey Smith in the infield and outfield have powered the team to an early winning record. But there are aspects of the game where the boys are still struggling.

"A big thing is not leaving men on base as much," said manager Paul Danieli. "We really ran into it in the Billerica game. We left about nine men on base over seven innings. We have to get those guys in."

While there is still room for improvement, Danieli is very enthusiastic about the talent level he has seen so far from the team. Last year, Danieli coached many of the same boys in a summer baseball team that struggled throughout the season.

"I think we might have gone 4-16," Danieli said. "We weren't that good. I wasn't sure how good we would be this year, but now I'm hoping we could go 10-6. I don't see why we can't."

NORTHEAST BASEBALL

The Northeast summer baseball team has had an up-and-down record over their first couple weeks, with Tuesday night's loss dropping their record to 3-4. Big wins and tough losses have marked the opening days of the season.

Wilmington has come up big against teams like Dracut, defeated 8-0 on the strength of four scoreless innings pitched by Chris Grecco with only hit allowed, with Danny Gracia closing out the final three innings with six strike outs. Wilmington piled on the runs in the fourth inning, with RBIs off the bats of Carl Beatrice, Jack Boyle, Kyle Bolis, Riley Zaya, and Gracia.

The good times kept rolling against Methuen, with Wilmington pulling off a 6-2 win off the backs of four pitchers. Dylan Bresnahan got the win, supported by Jarred Aucoin, Conner MacKenzie and Carl Beatrice with the save in the final inning.

Pitching was the key to victory in a recent game against Westford, a nailbiter that Wilmington pulled off with a 2-1 win. Ben Maynard pitched four scoreless innings and allowed only three hits, with Chris Grecco coming in for relief to pitch three innings with two hits, one unearned run and four strikeouts. Matt Rideout knocked home the winning run with a single in the seventh inning.

But there have been hard losses along the way. Lowell Catholic defeated Wilmington 14-7, while other heartbreakers included a 4-0 loss to Lynnfield and a 5-2 loss against Methuen.

Rising Hoop Camp, July 25-28

The Rising Star Basketball School has scheduled a four-day session at Melrose Sr/Jr High School for July 25-28, 2016.

Recognized as Greater Boston's finest teaching camp, Rising Star attracts outstanding area coaches who provide quality instruction and a competitive atmosphere.

The camp is open to players ages 9-18 who are divided into divisions by age. The camp runs 4 days from 8:30-3:30.

The camp is directed by Kevin O'Brien, former head coach at Brandeis. His 18 years of college coaching experience also include stops at Harvard, Boston University and Stonehill. Assistant Director of the camp is Melrose High Coach, Mike Kasprzak.

Other high school coaches on staff are former WHS Basketball player, former Stoneham High Head Coach and current Salem State College assistant coach Brian Cairra, Dave Clay, Triton Regional, John Fleming, Winchester High and Jody Norton, North Shore Tech. Low coach to player ratio and individual attention are a hallmark for Rising Star. Teaching and individual improvement are stressed each day.
